Find: Growth chart art

SEPTEMBER 11, 2010

Ah, the back-to-school ritual of marking each child's height on a wall: What if the measurements could be a lifelong keepsake, rather than a temporary pencil mark?

New Hampshire-based artist and mom Ellen McCaleb produces portable growth charts that are more like works of art.

The 7½-inch-wide, 44-inch-tall board has inch demarcations on the side that can be labeled to be appropriate for the family's height.

Designs include a tree, baseball bat, lighthouse, American flag and fish. The images are applied with no-VOC paint on repurposed wood.

Cost is $49 to $89 at www.GrowthChartArt.com.
